

PENN AND CORNELL PICK FINAL LINE-UP FOR GAME

Two Players Lost to Red and Blue by Injuries in Scrimmage Signal Practice Held at Whitemarsh.

Even to the changes the Pennsylvania football coaches have made during the last week to strengthen their line-up against Cornell, they have lost two men on whom they counted to start against the Ithacaans.

A somewhat similar injury will make it impossible for Lundberg to start at end, where he was slated on Monday.

Prior to their final workout this afternoon on the Whitemarsh Country Club golf links the coaches announced the official line-up for the game tomorrow afternoon.

This afternoon's practice was of the lightest nature possible. At 3 o'clock the varsity eleven, with substitutes, was ordered out on the golf links and ran through a brief drill.

Neither Coach Brooke nor Assistant Coach Dickson would make any prediction as to the result, but both said they felt confident that Pennsylvania would do better than many persons supposed.

The new line-up includes five players who did not start against Dartmouth. The coaches have made these changes more on account of the poor work of the first string men than anything the new men have done.

Junior week, the red letter event of the University of Pennsylvania social calendar begins today. The entire day night the Juniors will forsake their books and the classroom and spend their time between home and a round of football games, teas, receptions and dances.

A reception in Houston Hall this afternoon will start the festivities. This evening the class will "dine" at the Glee Club in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford.

Tomorrow the class will attend the Cornell game, and have reserved a separate section in the grand stand. On Friday many of the fraternities will keep open house, and the dances will be order. Saturday the Army and Navy game is the only event scheduled.

WINTER RACING SEASON OPENS AT JUAREZ

Many Horses Stabled at Track for Start Tomorrow.

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 25.—Many tractors of horses arrived at the track here today from stables and race courses throughout the country.

The local race track will open its course tomorrow. This will be the sixth winter racing season held at this course. Despite the fact that Mexico has been ripped and torn with its civil war, the racing at Juarez has flourished.

Last year there were 114 days of racing. It is likely that that number of days will be exceeded this winter. At least $100,000 will be distributed among horsemen before the course closes in April.

There are more horses now stabling here than in previous years. Since last spring the stables have been completely overhauled and are now in good condition.

J. G. Follanabee, the president of the Juarez Jockey Club, is a member of the Jockey Club of New York. James B. Miller, the noted merchant of New York, is the vice president. Colonel Matt Wilson, who acted as the recipient of the Empire City, Laurel and Louisville races this year, is the secretary and manager of the course.

BALTIMORE HOCKEY TEAM COMES HERE FRIDAY

Will Play Philadelphia Cricket Club at St. Martin's.

Although the hockey season, as far as the two women's leagues are concerned, is over and the annual game between All-Philadelphia and Bryn Mawr College has been played, several interesting matches are to be played in the near future.

CORNELL VANGUARD, 200 STRONG, ARRIVES FULL OF "PEPPER"

Backers of "Big Red Team" Willing to Bet on Tomorrow's Clash With Penn's Football Warriors.

Two hundred Cornell students, the vanguards of followers of the "Big Red Team," alighted into town this morning to be on hand tomorrow when their gridiron idols clash with the University of Pennsylvania team at Franklin Field.

When the "Cornell Special" rolled into the Reading Terminal at 7:31, the students swung from the steps of the sleepers and coaches and hurried to nearby restaurants, or made their way to the homes of friends or fraternity houses at the University of Pennsylvania, where they will remain until after the game.

The four sleepers and a single coach, carrying the rosters, were attached to the regular train leaving Ithaca at 11:05 last night. When the train reached Bethlehem, Pa., the students' section was cut loose from the regular train and another locomotive pulled them into the city about four minutes ahead of the regular train, which made a few stops on the way.

Upon their arrival here the students, all carrying a good stock "roll," seemed quite confident that when their eleven under "AT" Sharpe, the old Penn Charter school coach, are met tomorrow afternoon at Franklin Field the story would be a sad one, from a Pennsylvania viewpoint. They may only a miracle can save Brooke's team from defeat.

Five thousand tickets for the game were sent up to Cornell and half of this number will be taken by students, while the remaining numbered tickets were quickly taken by graduates who wished to witness the annual contest. Cornell's cheering at the game tomorrow will be led by Howard Fritz, star halfback of the Cornell team, who is ineligible to play on account of a four-year rule. He will be assisted by "Rube" Ingersoll, a track man, and "Herb" Adair, who held down third base on the Cornell nine.

Great credit for the splendid work of the Cornell football team this fall and the general improvement of the sport at Ithaca in the last two years, is due in a great measure to the success of the present coaching system, headed by Dr. Albert H. Sharpe, formerly of Philadelphia. Sharpe, with his two assistants, Daniel A. Reed and Orman, has labored patiently against great odds to overcome the humiliating record of Cornell football for a decade back and to restore it to a normal condition.

That they have succeeded, in great measure, the progress of the team this fall fully proves.

Yale and has been a star player on several Yale teams, went to Cornell from here, where he had been physical director of the Penn Charter school. He went to a time when Cornell's football fortunes had been at a low ebb for several years. Cornell had been trying the graduate system of coaches, but although one or two good teams were developed, the season invariably ended with a defeat at the hands of Pennsylvania. The Penn game became a bugaboo for Cornell teams and the alumni began to despair.

It was Cornell's players themselves who first suggested Sharpe's name. The alumni were in a receptive mood, and the Executive Committee of the Football Alumni Association made no objection. Sharpe went to Ithaca in the fall of 1912. It is said that he remarked that it allowed him to work out his own plans he would turn out a football team that would beat Pennsylvania by the time his three-year contract expired. Whether he said this or not is immaterial; the fact is that he did turn out a team last fall that beat Pennsylvania, and all Cornell is certain that he has another winning team this season.

When the Aronimink Country Club moved from West Philadelphia to Drexel Hill a large number of their membership came from the Bala Golf Club and the Country Club of Lansdowne. In fact, such transfers were made upon the membership of these two clubs that it was feared they would be some time in recovering the lost membership.

PERSONAL TOUCHES IN SPORTS

A certain well-known football expert who discloses himself in public print by the use of initials, has recently written an article in which he is required to teach players the fundamentals of the game. He says, and very truly, that it is a difficult task to teach men how to use the latest forms of diversified attack when to perfect them in the fundamentals of the game.

Five thousand tickets for the game were sent up to Cornell and half of this number will be taken by students, while the remaining numbered tickets were quickly taken by graduates who wished to witness the annual contest.
